AIMS AND CONTENT
20. What issues does the resource aim to address?	“The purpose of this guidebook is to support organisations and partnerships to maximise the value created by collaboration towards the Sustainable Development Goals. The guidebook deconstructs what “value” means and the types of value that partnerships can uniquely create. It also explores the range of partnerships that can be established and how the nature of the partnership influences the type of value created for the partners and towards sustainable development. Understanding these issues in greater detail should support organisations in the process of identifying, designing and managing effective partnerships that deliver the greatest value, and to think more ambitiously and creatively about how they partner.”

	SDG partnership case studies. The third part is devoted to a guide for practical actions based around a typical ‘partnering cycle’, including a set of tools designed to support both the partnership, and the individual partners, to identify, define, assess and maximise the types of value that the partnership will create overall, as well as the individual value each partner will gain from the collaboration. There is a reference section at the end providing suggestions for further resources that might be of use to the reader.” (p.5)
