20. What issues does the resource aim to address?  (UN Global Compact) and Oxfam International (Oxfam) to help companies – working in collaboration with a civil society organization (CSO) partner – to understand the impacts of their operations and value chain on people and poverty, and to turn this learning into action. The tool also takes a multidimensional view of poverty – which when suitably measured – presents a more complete picture of poverty than the income indicator alone.  The value of the Poverty Footprint is its ability to provide business and CSOs with the framework to partner and learn where and how a company impacts poverty, leading to recommendations for action. It provides the roadmap for partners to define steps to minimize negative impacts and enhance positive contributions to poverty eradication, and to develop pro-poor business models that drive development and approaches to assessing corporate impacts on development and poverty, in 2013, Oxfam joined forces with the UN Global Compact to improve the Poverty Footprint methodology and provide implementation guidance.

This Poverty Footprint Guide is the result of an international collaboration for nearly two years. Oxfam and the UN Global Compact extend their deep appreciation to all those who have contributed to the initiative and the Guide. Special gratitude goes to colleagues at Oxfam International and its affiliates for contributing their expertise, and to Steve Rochlin of IO Sustainability who facilitated discussions with the Advisory Group to produce the first draft of this Guide. ### 23. Organisation/structur e/contents

"This Guide explains the Poverty Footprint process and provides step-by-step implementation guidance, building upon the lessons of three comprehensive footprints Oxfam carried out with Unilever (2005), The Coca-Cola Company / SAB Miller (2011), and IPL, a wholly owned subsidiary of ASDA (2013).

It is organized in two sections. Section I "Overview" explains the approach, goals, requirements, and unique value of the Poverty Footprint to both business and CSOs. Section II "Implementation Guidance" explains the steps involved in conducting a Poverty Footprint." (p.5)

FRAMEWORKS

24. Framework structure

- A Poverty Framework is developed through six steps, which can be considered as a framework:
- "1. Establishing a formal partnership with a validated CSO [Civil Society Organisation]
- 2. Developing a collaborative project governance process that includes consistent dialogue with key stakeholders;
- 3. Agreeing on one of three implementation levels the Poverty Footprint will apply:
- 4. Using a decision-making framework that covers five dimensions of poverty (livelihoods, empowerment, health and well-being, security and stability, diversity and gender equality) and five areas of corporate practice (value chain; macroeconomy; institutions and policy; social implications of environmental practices; product development and marketing). This is referred to as the "5 by 5 Poverty Framework". It helps set focus, priorities, scope, and indicators;
- 5. Conducting research using the "5 by 5 Poverty Framework" and related indicators...
- 6. Publishing a report co-authored by the partners with findings, lessons learned recommendations, and commitments (with periodic follow up to publicly report on progress)." (p.7)

The '5 by 5 Poverty Framework' can be considered as a framework. A set of indicators for the Framework can be found
