Similarly, the outputs were many and varied including an artist-led zine, public events, musical and theatre performances, temporary exhibitions, permanent displays, academic seminars, panel discussions, spoken word poetry, filmmaking, stationery design and production, educational booklets and resources, a women's trail, an interfaith ceremony, and a published book.
	Exchange evaluated these activities to address the project's key question - How can participation be more equitable for diaspora heritage community members? - with the aim of increasing the plurality of voices in collections-based research and outputs and collaboration across the museum sector more generally.
	This report shares the Exchange experience and the recommendations emerging from the evaluation to inform future work between communities and museum partners."
